Between Aragon and Catalonia, the Mont-rebei gorge cuts from north to south the Montsec mountain range, the first great formation of the Catalan Pre-Pyrenees. The reserve protects almost 600 hectares on the Catalan shore: the same gorge and the banks of the river (where the otter lives), the cliffs (home to large birds of prey) and part of the shady slope of Montsec d'Ares (covered with oaks) .

DETAILS

Come and enjoy an experience that will awaken your senses! Cross with us Montsec mountain range, where the river Noguera Ribagorçana has created an immense vertical cut, the de Mont-rebei gorge, a spectacular landscape that we will cross both by water and by land, through its gorge. It will leave a mark on you. Let us tell you its secrets.

The campsite

We will also sleep in haimas without giving up the comfort of a good hotel room. We will taste the best local products and enjoy a good D.O. Costers del Segre while we share a pleasant conversation by the fire.

Being able to contemplate the starry sky, declared a Starlight Sky under the protection of UNESCO, is a privilege of this area. Your senses will tinkle like the stars, until your spirit is once again filled with what you have probably lost.

Come reconnect with nature.

The activities have many possibilities and can be perfectly adapted to different types of groups. Activities of a more sporty tone, interpreting the landscape, family ...

VEGETATION AND FAUNA

The walls and rocks of the narrow gorge are some of the most unique environments in the space, where curious plants such as the bear's ear and the king's crown grow, and birds of prey such as the bearded vulture, the golden eagle or the common vulture nest. In addition to the cliffs and the river, where otters are sometimes seen, and fish such as carp are almost always seen, we find various environments depending on the orientation of the slopes.

In the shady areas there are dense oak groves, and the Mediterranean vegetation dominates the sunny solanas with holm oaks, bojedaes and weeds. The Montsec crest, dry and strongly beaten by the wind, is covered with dry meadows and bushes. The great biodiversity of the place is completed by the cave environments of caves and chasms, a refuge for bats and other animals of the underground environment.
